1. Reading Comprehension (unseen Passage)

A ten years old boy saw a flying bird and shot it down. He ran and picked it up. The bird looked like a house sparrow, but it had a yellow patch on the throat. The child had not seen such spots before. The puzzled boy took the sparrow to his uncle Amiruddeen and asked him what kind of bird it was. His uncle was not able to satisfy his curiosity. He took the boy to the office of Bombay Natural History Society and introduced him to W. S. Millard, the Honorary Secretary of the society. Millard was surprised to find such a young boy keen to know about the birds. He took him around the room and showed him many stuffed birds. The child became more curious about birds.

Thereafter, the boy started coming to his office frequently to learn about identifying and preserving birds. The boy was Salim Moizuddin Abdul Ali, later known as Salim Ali, the bird watcher. Salim Ali was born on November 12, 1896. He did a course in zoology and was appointed a guide at the museum of Bombay Natural History Society. During the course of this work, he became more and more eager to study the living conditions of the birds. With this aim he went to Germany. After one year, he returned to India. In his absence, his post in the museum had been abolished for lack of funds. He would sit under the trees throughout the day and write in his note book about the activities of the weaver bird. In 1930 he published a research paper on the nature and the activities of the weaver bird. The published papers brought him fame and recognition in the fields of Ornithology. After this, he travelled to various places to study about birds and wrote a book titled 'The Book of Indian Birds' which was published in 1941. The book gave information about 538 Species of Indian birds.

Because of his deep knowledge about the birds, people started calling him the moving encyclopaedia of birds. He worked not only in the study of birds but also in the field of protection of nature. He was given an international award of Rs. 5,00,000 which he donated to the Bombay Natural History Society. In 1983, he was awarded the Padma Vibhushan by the Government of India. ## "All the World's a Stage"

- William Shakespeare.

William Shakespeare by name Bard of Avon (1564-1616) was an English poet, dramatist & a actor of the Renaissance era. He is widely regarded as the greatest writer in the English language & the world's greatest dramatist. The poet & dramatist Ben Jonson, the Shakespeare "was not of an age but for all time". He wrote 38 plays, two long narrative poems & 154 Sonnets. His most famous works include Hamlet, Othello, King Lear, Romeo & Juliet & Macbeth.

This realistic poem "All the World's a Stage". The lines of this poem have been taken from one of Shakespeare's plays named "As you like it". These lines have been delivered by one of the characters of this play whose name is Jacques a sad character of this play. He has delivered these lines in Act II scene VII line 139.

Jacques has used these lines as a monologue.

The theme of this poem is that person is the ultimate loser in the game of life. A person makes an entry in this worldly stage & performs different roles in his lifetime. Finally, he/she leaves this worldly stage struggling in different circumstances. He/she comes empty handed here & leaves this stage empty handed.

Seven stages of man's life & his

Infanthood stage:

The first stage of man's life is infant. He plays in the arms of his mother. He often vomits & cries in this stage. He is fully dependent on other's care.

Stage of Boyhood:

In his second stage of <sup>boy</sup>hood he is a school going student. He slings his bag over his shoulder with his shining face & creeps to school unwillingly to a snail.

Stage of a lover:

He becomes a lover in his third stage. Here, his breath is hot. He is very busy composing ballads for his beloved's eyes & yearns for her attention.

Stage of soldier:

In the fourth stage, he is aggressive & ambitious with full of strange oaths. He seems like a leopard with his beard. He seeks reputation in all that he does. He is willing to die in a battle to earn the bubble reputation. He seems courageous even in the mouth of canon. He is ready to guard his country & becomes a soldier.

Stage of Maturity & Wisdom:

In his fifth stage, he becomes a fair judge with maturity wisdom. He has a fair round belly. He seems firm & serious with his eyes & formal cut beard. He tries to provide fair justice to others.

Stage of old age:

In the sixth stage, he is seen with loose pantaloons & spectacles. He becomes a thin old man. His manly voice changes into a thin childish tone.

Stage of Extreme Old age (Second childhood).

The last stage of all is his second childhood. Slowly, he loses his faculties of sight, hearing, smell & taste & exits from the roles of his life.

Thus Shakespeare has presented different images of the seven stages of a man's life in the poem "All the world's a stage". Life is like a drama of the world is a stage where we all are actors & play our roles. Finally, he/she leaves this worldly stage struggling in different circumstances. He/she comes empty-handed here & leaves this stage empty-handed. He/she brings nothing & takes nothing.

- is viewed as somewhat a blend of ~~of~~ spirituality.

On November 14, 1913 Tagore received the "Nobel prize in literature".

The main idea in this poem depicts the Indian values. The power of charity & humbleness on one hand & Surrender to God's will on the other hand are elevated here.

The beggars referred to in the poem, Gitanjali (No. 50) is none but the poet himself as well as everyman. One day he was begging from door to door in the village path or it might be the endless wandering of humanity in the wasteland of modernity where there is no hope, no love or no sympathy. End route something unusual happened. There appeared at a distance a golden chariot that made everything bright with its golden hues. The chariot seemed too the poet to be a gorgeous dream - dream of pomp & splendour. The poet thought in wonder who this king of kings was. The "king of kings" referred to in the poem is God, who is the supreme ruler of the universe.

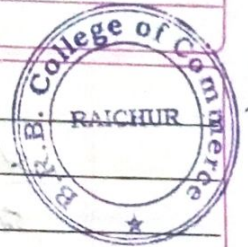

Seeing the golden chariot the poet became hopeful. His hopes rose limping high. He thought that the king of all kings would give him unlimited wealth as alms & the days of his misery would come to an end. So, he stood waiting with -eager expectations for the chariot to come near him & for plenty of precious alms to be scattered in the dust!

The chariot came & stopped where the poet stood waiting for the king of kings to come & give him alms. The king's glance fell on him & he came down from the chariot with a smile. The poet now felt that the luck of his life had come at last. plam to a beggar to beg? In fact he is the raj beggar in this waste land & where he earnestly solicits love, compassion & faith from his fellow subjects human being. But the world is stuck in the mud of materialism, & spiritualism is altogether missing. However, the poet beggar was utterly confused & stood undecided. After a while he came back to his senses from his confused state of mind. He slowly took out from his wallet the least little grain of corn & gave it to the king of kings. The word 'slowly' used in the poem suggests the poet's reluctance to give alms to the king. It also reveals his miserliness. Again, the expression "least little grain" shows how miserly the poet beggar was.

At the day's end the poet beggar returned home & emptied his bag on the floor to see what he had collected on that day. His surprise knew no bounds when he found that there was a little grain of gold among the poor heap of alms. He now understood that the king of kings was God himself & the little piece of gold was given by him. He also understood that this gold had great spiritual value, because it was an embodiment of God's blessing on him. The poet bitterly wept because he gave the king of kings only a little grain of corn. He realised that if he gave him all, he would receive much more. He thus lost a great opportunity to surrender himself to God or the lord of life & by doing this he could be elevated to higher spiritual plane from a lower material one. So he said with great regret "I had the heart to give thee my all", He then realised that the beggar was no other than God himself in disguise.

Thus, the poet beggar had been rewarded by God for the act of charity which the poet had done despite his own materialistic penury. In a nutshell it is an interesting poem which tells a neat little story conveying a precious spiritual message.

La Belle Dame sans merci

- Johan Keats

Johan Keats, (born October 31, 1795, London, England - died February 23, 1821, Rome, Papal States, Italy) English Romantic lyric poet who devoted his short life to the perfection of a poetry marked by vivid imagery, great sensuous appeal, and an attempt to express a philosophy through classical legend. He was an English poet of the second generation of Romantic poets, with Lord Byron and Percy Bysshe Shelley, although his poems had been published for less than four years when he died of tuberculosis at the age of 25.

La Belle Dame sans merci, poem by Johan Keats first published in the May 10, 1820 issue of the Indicator. The poem, whose title is French phrase which means: The Beautiful lady without pity.

describes the encounter between a knight and a mysterious elfin beauty - who ultimately abandons him. It is written in the style of a folk ballad, with the first three stanzas as a query to the knight and remaining nine stanzas the knight's reply. The poem is sometimes seen as a counterpart to Keats' "The Eve of St Agnes" which represents an idyllic view of love. Keats took his title from a medieval poem with the same name by the French poet Alain Chartier.

The poem is a conversation between the poet and a knight who falls in love with a fairy lady who is mysterious.

once a knight was wandering about in a sad and dejected mood by the side of the lake. The poet asked the knight why he was so pale and wandering alone near the lake where no green grass is left and no bird is singing. The season described in the poem is that of winter. In literature, winter symbolize solitude, sorrow and grief. He again refers to the winter season by saying that the squirrel is done with collecting the grapes and the harvest is also done.

Now after listening to the questions raised by the poet the knight replied that that he had met a beautiful lady in the meadows and was fascinated by her looks and beautiful features. She also fell in with him. As a token of love, he gifts her a garland for her head, bracelet and fragrant zone. They both ride on a horseback and the whole day they spend time with each other. The lady also sings songs for the knight that seem to him as the
